

ASTDA is the preeminent professional association of STD researchers, practitioners, and prevention specialists in the United States. Our members include researchers, clinicians, program managers, and policy makers. All ASTDA members receive regular updates on the latest scientific information and are kept informed about current issues in the field. If you:

- believe in rigorous science adhering to the highest ethical standards,
- promote a sex-positive sexual health framework,
- are committed to an STI workforce comprised of professionals with a wide range of roles and experiences,
- value a culture of inclusion, equity, safety, professionalism and respect, and
- recognize social justice as a core value for addressing STIs, then you should become a member of ASTDA.

Benefits of Membership

- Subscription to the journal, Sexually Transmitted Diseases, is included in the price of membership and includes access to full-text articles online.
- ASTDA members are extended joint membership in the International Union against Sexually Transmitted Infections (IUSTI) and receive a substantial discount of 40% on a subscription to the Union's official journal, the International Journal of STD and AIDS.
